

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

This is a time of great events, and you will want the news accurately and promptly. All the countries of the world steadily draw closer together, and the telegraph wires bring the happenings of every one. No other newspaper has a service equal to that of The World and it relates everything fully and promptly.

The World long since established a record for impartiality, and any body can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that it to be found in a first class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

Unusual Offer To Our Readers.

For a limited time, and subject to withdrawal after 30 days, the well-known publishing house of the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, founded in 1792, offers to the readers of this paper a 12 months' subscription to "Lippincott's Magazine" and a year's subscription to the Kentuckian, both for $3.00. This is the price of a twelve months' subscription to "Lippincott's" alone. Additional to obtaining every issue of this paper for a year, our readers will receive in "Lippincott's," 12 great complete novels by popular authors, 105 short stories, crisp, entertaining, original 45 timely articles from the pens of masters, and each month some excellent poems with the right sentiment, and "Walnuts and Wine," the most popular humor section in America. To obtain this extraordinary offer prompt action is necessary. Remit to J. B. Lippincott Company, Washington Square, Phila., Pa. Advertisement.

PENGUINS ON HUNGER STRIKE

Foolish Birds, Emulating Suffragettes, Have to Be Forcibly Fed at London Zoo.

Nineteen young penguins at the London zoological gardens have begun a "hunger strike." Like the militant suffragists, they refuse food, and have to be forcibly fed.

The resemblance of penguins to human beings has been noticed by every explorer in regions frequented by these quaint creatures.

"This," wrote Dr. James Murray, the scientific member of Sir Ernest Shackleton's antarctic expedition of 1907-1909, "is partly due to the habit of walking erect; but there are truly a great many human traits about them."

The trouble at the "zoo" is that nobody there understands the penguin language. Yet Dr. Murray is convinced that the penguins have powers of speech, and he describes a "palaver" he witnessed, when an "old man" bird made a long speech, "in a muttering manner, short sounds following in groups of four or five." The doctor, to whom the speech was addressed, confesses that he did not understand a word of it, but the penguin was very patient and repeated it all over again with no better results.

No doubt the young penguins at the "zoo" have been telling their keeper all about their reasons for going on "hunger strike," but, alas, he does not understand a word of their speech. So he has resorted to forcible feeding. The latest bulletin states that they are "doing well" under the treatment, and it is hoped they will come to reason before long.

Among the "hunger strikers" are rare specimens from the Falkland islands.

KNOWN THE GAME ALL RIGHT

Joax—We had lawn tennis soup at my boarding house today.

Hoax—What kind of soup is lawn tennis soup?

Joax—Strained through a net and served hot.

HER TEETH BLOWN OUT.

Biting on a torpedo she took to be candy, Marion Quackenbush, seven years old, of Cornwall, N. Y., lost six teeth when the dynamite cap exploded. Her lips, mouth, and throat were lacerated. Her condition is critical.

She is the daughter of Floyd Quackenbush. She found the cap, which her brother had brought from the West Shore railroad tracks, and kept biting on it until it went off. She was hurled to the ground unconscious. Her brother quickly procured medical aid, and the wounded youngster was revived.

NOT SO FAMILIAR.

"Do your employers treat you like one of the family?"

"Oh, dear, no! I'd never stand for their swearing at me."

PROFESSIONAL INTEREST.

"Why are people advised to tell their troubles to a policeman?"

"Because it is easy to arrest his attention."

PARADOXICAL.

"Jones looks as if he had been in a fight."

"Oh, no; he merely attended a peace conference."

DOUBTFUL COMPLIMENT.

She—Oh, there goes Peggy Brown. Isn't she lovely? I wish I was half as good looking!

He—Oh, but you are!

QUICKLY UNDERSTOOD.

"This plant belongs to the begonia family."

"Ah! You are taking care of it while they are away."

She Stayed in Bed.

Ing-Jam, Tex.—"Ever since I became a woman," writes Mrs. E. M. Evans, of this place, "I suffered from womanly troubles. Last fall I got so bad, I had to stay in bed for nearly a week every month. Since I have taken Cardui, I feel better than I have for years." You can rely on Cardui. It acts on the womanly organs and helps the system to regain its normal state of health, in a natural way. Prepared especially for womanly pains, by acting on the cause, and builds up womanly strength in a natural way. Purely vegetable. Mild, but certain in action. Try it. Advertisement.

BEST TIME TO TAKE A MATE

Authoress of Opinion That Women Should Marry Somewhere About the Age of Thirty.

Marjorie Benton Cooke, author of "Bambie," submitted to an interview by a New York newspaper woman the other day, in which she said: "The girl of eighteen marries a man because she's mad about him. The woman of twenty-eight marries because she wants a chum. Of the two unions I believe that the second is much more likely to result in lasting happiness."

"The woman who doesn't marry till she is nearly thirty has found out that loneliness means. Or she has seen women fifty or sixty years old with no one to companion them and a black future almost upon them. She has said to herself with a shiver, 'I may be like that!' So she marries a man with whom she can be good friends and who, on his part, asks nothing more than she has to give."

"Or if she doesn't find that sort of man and remains unmarried. There are conditions prescribed by some husbands which fill with disgust the economically independent woman. Once to have filled your own pocket-book with the proceeds of your own work is to have tasted blood, you know."

"The modern woman demands so much more of a husband than the woman of a generation ago. It's not merely that she wants a fairer financial status, but she requires intellectual companionship and more cleanliness."

INDUSTRIOUS

"Why are you hanging around the mouth of that pitcher?"

"Merely professional interest. I'm taking a night course in dentistry, and I thought I'd merely look into every mouth I see."

QUIET.

Quiet is for the rich. It is an item to be placed under the head of "The High Cost of Living."

Quiet for the poor? They ain't none.

This absence of noise stays secreted in large mansions, in expensive hospital quarters and magnificent hotel suites. It walks forth only when lured by money in tan bark and enormous tips to the traveling, screaming public and to traffic which only then refrains from racking every nerve to the verge of insanity. Most of the inventions of the Evil One are the result of research in the realm of noise and clutter.

THE REAL TROUBLE.

Rankin—When Beanbrough's wife scolded him for gambling he told her he was more sinned against than sinning.

Phyle—What did she say to that? Rankin—She told Beanbrough the trouble with him was that he was more winned against than winning.

PRESUMPTIVE EVIDENCE.

"Is he completely under his wife's dominion?"

"I guess so. He wears a bathing suit that she made for him."—Puck

SOME SHORT STEPPER.

"My, Farmer Hornhand, your horse is a short stepper!"

"Yeah. He can trot all day in th' shadder of a mullein stalk."

HER RIVAL.

"What has become of that talking machine you had?"

"Had to get rid of it; it made my wife jealous."

ABOUT THIS TIME OF YEAR.

Father—How do you mean your checkbook is crazy?

Son—It's unbalanced, that's all.—Yale Record.

LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need to do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all, to ADVERTISE in THIS PAPER
